Florida notaries public are served by two offices – the Notary Section of the Executive Office of the Governor, and the Notary Commissions and Certificates Section within the Department of State. Both offices are involved with the appointment of notaries public, but each performs distinct functions. The Notary Section of the Executive Office of the Governor is housed within the Office of the General Counsel because Florida notaries are public officers appointed and commissioned by the Governor.

The primary function of the Notary Section of the Executive Office of the Governor is to provide educational materials and assistance to Florida notaries public. Our dedicated staff responds to telephone and email inquiries from notaries and members of the public, and we welcome you to contact us if you have any notary-related questions. The Notary Section also assists the Governor by evaluating “special review” applications related to an applicant's eligibility for appointment.

The Notary Commissions and Certifications Section of the Department of State, on the other hand, has a strictly ministerial function in receiving and processing applications, and responding to requests for commissions and certificates. The Notary Commissions and Certifications Section also maintains the online Notary Education Course, which is an online educational tool offered free-of-charge, and preserves records of actively commissioned Florida notaries public in its computer database, called Notary Search. You may access the Notary Search database by clicking on this link to search for information on commissioned notaries public in the State of Florida.

General Procedure for Performing Marriage Ceremonies

One of the most interesting, and somewhat unusual, duties of a Florida Notary Public is to perform marriage ceremonies. The law giving Notaries the authority "to solemnize the rites of matrimony" was enacted in 1861. To solemnize a marriage, you should follow this general procedure:

1. The couple must obtain a valid Florida marriage license from a county court judge or Clerk of the Circuit Court and present it to you before the marriage ceremony. You should check both the effective and the expiration dates of the license to ensure that the license is valid. You should also require identification if the bride and groom are not personally known to you.
2. You then perform the marriage ceremony. An example of a simple, civil ceremony is printed below, first in English and followed in Spanish. It may be personalized, and the bride and groom may even exchange their own vows. But, the couple's vows must reflect their intentions to make a legally binding commitment to each other.
3. You are responsible for completing the certificate portion of the Marriage Record and returning it to the office that issued the license within 10 days after solemnizing the marriage.
